

A vertical strip showing the binding of a book. The right side features a dark, heavily textured and worn cover, likely leather or a similar material, with visible cracks and peeling. The left side shows a lighter, smoother binding material, possibly cloth or leather, which appears to be part of the spine or a hinge. The overall image is a high-contrast, black and white scan of a physical object.

